

I

suppose there are thousands if not millions of dads getting ties about this time. However, the more important thing is not what they are getting for father’s day, but rather what they will do with their great responsibility as given by God. Today we will examine what happens when you accept responsibility in life. Tonight is devoted mainly to singing.

IN NEED OF PRAYER We are saddened at the passing of brother Gene Rowland Hagan. Services were this past week at Yokely-Trible and we thank all those who provided for the meal afterward at the church building. Pernie Chandler had to go to the local hospital for a kidney infection. He may be out by the time you read this. Becky Shaw is to go back the 24th and see how they might adjust medication or otherwise treat her.

State Line Camp: Pray that all goes well this week, that we learn many good things, and that the young ones stay safe.

VBS: There is a sign-up sheet to teach classes posted out front. VBS will be July 12-15. The literature is in so when you sign up you can get it and start studying on it.

Meeting: The Meeting at Berea went well. We had good crowds each evening and on Tuesday night sister Rita Rich asked for prayers.

Some of my greatest memories have been made at church camp! This week, I am at Mid-South Youth Camp in Henderson, TN. Being here has reminded me of several reasons I believe kids need to be going to camp.

1. Build Relationships – Young people will have friends. The question is, will they be Christian friends? 1 Corinthians 15:33 says, “Do not be deceived: ‘Bad company ruins good morals.’” Take it from someone who has ministered to young people for over a decade, one of the greatest ways to lose a great Christian kid is to allow them to develop deep friendships with those in the world. Instead, send your kids somewhere where they can build healthy Christian friendships.

2. Technology Fasting – We all need a break from technology; especially television and video games. I hardly ever hear young people complain of missing television while at camp. In fact, most young people at the end of the camp session say how little they miss all their gadgets. This time-out from technology helps teach kids they don’t need any of that stuff; they can survive without it. It teaches them that life is actually more fun without being in front of a screen all day. And most importantly, they have a MUCH easier time focusing on spiritual things when they are not distracted by texting their friends, killing digital zombies, or watching their favorite show.

3. Bible Time – Most importantly, kids have the opportunity to saturate their minds and their hearts with God’s word. Most young people come back from camp on a “spiritual high” because they have tasted the greatness of God and His word. Spending hours every day studying God’s word, hearing Bible lessons, and singing praises to God will do that to you! Unfortunately, this high is short-lived because their homes are a very different, and far less spiritual, environment.

4. Nature – As a bonus, let me say that spending time in God’s creation is one of my favorite parts of camp. To me, there is nothing like being in the woods, listening to the birds and the bugs in the trees, and breathing the fresh air. Although it isn’t necessary to spend a week out in nature, I think it helps us all better appreciate the Creator!

Christian camp isn’t just for kids. Adults need times like this too. In fact, parents need to make their homes much like church camp. You can make your home a place where your kids can hang out with Christian friends, be free from technological distractions, spend time studying the Bible, singing praises to God, and even enjoying nature. Why not, make your home a place where your kids can be spiritually charged up all year long?
